TRIAL OF MRS. BOYD

Postponed Until Saturday, April 3—Mother Would Not Listen To Offers To Adopt Child.

(Times-Star.)

Stella Boyd, the Maysville (Ky.)
heiress, who was charged with abandoning her 8 months old baby, was arraigned before Judge Fricke in Municipal Court, Monday.

The young woman told Judge Fricke that she wants her baby. She would not listen to any of several offers to adopt the child. Her attitude in this connection was not in accord with the statement made in the Juvenile Court Saturday that the woman would consent to the adoption of the baby. Evidently she changed her mind.

Judge Fricke continued the case to April 3, and in the meantime the Juvenile Society will arrange with the mother for the care of her baby.

Concerning Soil Tillage

After the ground is plowed, it should be disced and harrowed until all lumps are finely pulverized. This is because the delicate plant roots cannot penetrate hard lumps and are, therefore, deprived of much plant food. Tillage increases the availability of plant food elements by changing the arrangements of soil particles and bringing together those that have not before been in contact.
It also changes the relation of the soil with air, water, salts and acids in the soil, making available plant food that would otherwise remain dormant.

The John Deere Disc Harrow is so arranged as to give the farmer the very best results obtainable. Come in, and let us show the machine to you.

RING-NECKED PHEASANTS

From England Arrived Yesterday In
This City and Will Be Distributed In the County.

In the distribution of the 2,500 English ring-necked pheasants, which the state of Kentucky has just received from a private pheasant fancier in England, 15 of the beautiful birds were yesterday received in this county by Messrs. H. C. Sharp, William Mitchell and Hon. S. P. Reed, who have charge of distributing the birds on farms where they will be protected.

The birds were divided in bunches of three and were placed on the farms of S. P. Reed at Minerva, Paul Best at Fernleaf, D. H. Pickett at Lawrence Creek, Mrs. Finch at Heleena and on a farm in the North Fork neighborhood.
This plan of placing the birds in this county is the same as is being carried out in most of the other counties throughout the state.

Six of the birds were on display in the west show window of the John Brisbois furniture store for a short while yesterday morning and were admired by a great number of people.
They are slightly larger than the common quail, but have long tails which make them look much larger.

The birds were first shipped to Philadelphia, where they were received by Wood W. Langmore of Frankfort, Ky., secretary of the Kentucky Game and Fish Commission, who divided them into 150 separate shipments and had them sent to each of the 120 counties in this state, but quite a number will be kept in captivity at the state's game farm at Pine Mountain.

"We are making this experiment to see if pheasants will thrive in Kentucky," said Secretary Langmore.
"Many of the western states, notably Oregon, Montana and Wyoming, which have imported pheasants, have had splendid success with them, but usually they have not done as well east of the Mississippi river. We also are making arrangements for co-operation with the state of Pennsylvania to import Bob White quail from Cuba."

Hunters should bear in mind that there is a heavy penalty attached to the killing of these birds at present and every true sportsman should do all in his power to see that the birds are protected.

TEA SHOP CELEBRATES ITS SEC-OND ANNIVERSARY.

(Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) News Press
March 18.)

St. Patrick has been a lucky saint for the Tea Shop on Market street, for that institution celebrated on Wednesday the completion of a second year of astonishing success in every way. There were between 15 and 20 people for luncheon at noon, and a large number in the afternoon to partake of the special tea that is now being offered. Miss Bentley and Mrs.
Stanley Bartlett, Jr., who have been conducting the shop, received the congratulations of their many visitors and friends, and best wishes for the year to come.

Their unique venture has acquired a genuine place in Poughkeepsie's social life, and many have formed a regular habit of dropping into the shop almost every day. The noon time luncheon is popular also.

Mrs. Bartlett is a former popular Maysville girl, is a daughter of the late Henry C. Bartlett and wife and a sister of Mr. Harry Barkley and Mr.
Frank Barkley of this city. Her many friends are pleased to hear of her success.

COTTAGE PRAYER MEETINGS.

Preparatory to the revival services which will begin Easter Sunday at the Third Street M. E. church, cottage prayer meetings will again be held this evening at the following homes:

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Richardson, East
Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Mance, East
Fifth street.

Mrs. Anna Schatzmann, West Second street.

These services will begin at 7 o'clock and will last for 30 minutes. Everybody is cordially invited to attend one of these meetings this evening. They are important steps to the great work to begin soon.

REVIVAL SERVICES.

Revival services at the Apostolic Holiness church, East Third street, will continue through this week. God is giving a great revival. As a result of the meeting there have been 83 professions of either regeneration or sanctification in two weeks. The attendance is increasing from night to night. There were between 350 and 400 people in the congregation Sunday night. We are praying that God will continue to bless and give us many more souls during this week. We cordially invite every one to come and take part in this great campaign for Jesus.

THE PROBLEM OF THE BILLY SUNDAY MYSTERY.

Does he do more harm than good?
The question of the undoubted new interest he arouses in things of the soul, and of the spirit, and of the salvation, outweigh and bear down the harm he does in arousing a condition of hysteria, of excitement, of frenzy, all but of catalepsy, that exempts from all personal sense of responsibility, that glorifies the unusual, that magnifies the magnetism of the occasion?

We are not in the least concerned with the question of the personal remuneration of Billy Sunday. We are not in the remotest interested in the sum total of his cash receipts, or his cash expenses, or his cash contributions. However large the certified check he took away from the city of Philadelphia, it was wholly negligible if, in sober, cold fact, he saved one-tenth of the souls so diligently counted to his credit. If, in a great city and a wealthy city, he is answerable for a new conception of life and responsibility, he can not be overpaid.

Billy Sunday is a "rough neck" by profession, if not by choice. If he far you, he is nearly as well pleased as if he convert you. The one operation completes the other. His is, broad and bold, the gospel of good-will—but you better be with him. His is, first of all, the creed of contrition. If you are not so foolish as to consign Phillips Brooks, and Henry Drummond, and Henry Ward Beecher to everlasting perdition, look out.

Billy hates. Billy denounces. Billy takes upon himself, with no sense of irreverence, the denunciation that is God-like and the anathema that is divine. His is, all the time, a service of condemnation and of exhortation. Are you a Christian Scientist? Go visit Hades. Are you a Unitarian? Go to perdition. Are you for me? It is not healthy to be against me. But be for Christ, and be forgiven.

Billy's a bigot. The message he brings, the truth he tells, the strength that his is and the honesty, as we believe, are marred by a narrow and restricted point of view.

This is a country of freedom in religion. Billy narrows it down.

This is a country of toleration. Billy is intolerant.

Of evil, you say?

No; not altogether. Of those who are not Billy Sundayans. And he keeps the door wide open. Louisville Herald.

At the same time he claims that prohibition has been a success.

CATECHISMS FOR LAWYERS.

Judge David F. Pugh suggests in the Ohio Law Reporter, a "Catechism for Lawyers," which includes a deal of sound doctrine looking toward a noble practice of the law. The catechism is in the form of questions as to what the lawyer did last year and plainly implying what he should do this year. They are so good that we would like to copy them all, but we must give a few:

During the last year just ended did I accept a retainer in any case of doubtful character?

Did I use any trickery, any questionable means, to secure clients?

Did I, in the trial or hearing of any case, insist upon the enforcement of a purely technical rule against an opponent lawyer who had "unwittingly slipped his guard?"

Did I, if there was an opportunity, try to settle differences between men, or did I foment strife between them?

Did I delay the just demand of any client opponent by dilatory tactics?

In the discussions at the bar, was I polite and gentlemanly debater, or was I cross, indecorous or brutal?

Did I, in my arguments, consciously misstate the evidence or facts, or pervert the law?

In briefs or arguments, when it was necessary to assemble authorities, did I mention the unfavorable as well as the favorable decisions?

This catechism suggests pitfalls that a lawyer is liable to fall into, but if none of them do, the practice of the law will thereby be honored and exalted. There is nothing meaner than a low practice of the law; there is nothing grander than a high practice of the law. So, catch hold of the Judge's hints.

FOOLISH PHILOSOPHY.

As for early marriages, the fool is often a grandfather before the wise man even thinks of taking unto himself a wife.

Experience is the best teacher. A man never realizes how little he knows until experience drags it into him.

No man can afford to run along year after year and not earn his salt unless he belongs to a commission of some sort.

The only time some people get busy is when they meddle with things that don't concern them.

Our idea of the sorriest man is one who can't find a lodge which he would be welcome to join.

"Be nisy, now," replied his second, "I'll soon put that right."

Taking a piece of chalk from his pocket he drew lines down the stout man's coat, leaving a space between them.

WHY THE POSTAL APPROPRIATION BILL FAILED ---AN ATTEMPT AT RAILROAD CONFISCATION

New York, March 17.—To the Railroad Garrying the United States Mail and the Parcel Post.

The Senate of the United States acted most wisely and justly in declining to pass the Postoffice Appropriation bill carrying Representative Moon's railway mail pay "rider," which provided a new system of rates on the so-called "space basis" of payment.

The stand of the Senate against this measure was simply a stand against an almost undisguised effort at confiscation, such as was never before attempted in the Congress of the United States.

The enactment of the Moon "rider" would have clothed the Postmaster General with autocratic and unbridled power to reduce railway mail pay at will; to fix rates even lower than those which were called "absolutely confiscatory" by a joint committee of Congress; and finally, to compel the carriage of the mails and the parcel post, at such rates, by means of a new law that would find any railroad company $5,000 per day for a refusal to perform service on the terms and conditions named by the Postmaster General.

In his official capacity as chairman of the House of Representatives Postoffice committee, Congressman Moon publicly said that the Postoffice Department proposed to utilize this power by compelling the railroads to carry the parcel post for practically nothing, thus reducing their compensation $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 per year, and so averting an impending Postoffice deficit.

The injustice of such a plan to saddle the postal deficit upon the railroads is emphasized by the fact that the joint committee of Congress, especially appointed to investigate the question of railway mail pay, reported only last summer, after two years of study, that in all fairness the compensation of the railroads should be increased and not diminished.

That the postoffice bill—the most important of all the appropriation measures, carrying $25,000,000—failed of passage, thus necessitating emergency legislation in the last moments of the session, is due solely to the refusal of Representative Moon and his associates to permit the withdrawal of the "rider" after it had become perfectly clear that the Senate would not be a party to confiscation.

In consequence of Chairman Moon's unyielding attitude, a situation has been created which has not been paralleled in a generation and which may materially hamper the operations of the Postoffice Department in the coming fiscal year.

Two Unwarranted Statements Answered.

Since the failure of the postal appropriation bill and the adjournment of Congress, Chairman Moon has made two public assertions that should not go unanswered.

1. Chairman Moon is quoted in a newspaper interview as saying that it cost the government $600,000 to obtain the information upon which his "rider" was based.

The facts are, as the Second Assistant Postmaster General, Mr. Joseph Stewart, testified under oath in the hearings before the joint Congressional committee on Railway Mail Pay, that the Postoffice Department spent $19,427.20 out of an appropriation of $20,000, in obtaining the information referred to by Mr. Moon. In addition, the Congressional committee itself, spent $6,500.50 out of an appropriation of $25,000.

Thus the total cost to the government of this entire inquiry, of which the Moon "rider" was only one of several results, was $25,927.70, instead of $600,000, as Mr. Moon declared.

The labor of compiling the information, as a matter of fact, fell almost entirely upon the railroads. The statistical and clerical work necessary to furnish the figures which the Postoffice Department called for was enormous.

The expense to the railroads approximated a quarter of a million dollars, or about ten times what the inquiry cost the government.

2. In his letter to Postmaster General Bullock, regarding the failure of the Postoffice Appropriation bill, Chairman Moon said:

"The railroads are charging the government twice as much as they gave the express companies."

This extravagant and many-times refuted assertion was made in the face of the joint Congressional committee's authoritative finding on the subject. The committee, in its report to Congress, found that "the express service undoubtedly costs the railroads less than the mail per car mile," and that the complete evidence showed the mail earnings of the railroads to be "decidedly lower than from express on a car mile basis, which is the best basis for comparison we have."

The committee said: "We are compelled to reject the Postoffice Department's attempt to show higher relative earnings from mail as reckless and misleading."

Later, the report added: "Certainly there is no warrant in the oft-repeated assertion that the government is being robbed in its mail payments by comparison with what the express companies pay. There has been an amazing amount of reckless assertion on this subject."

It seems but just to say that the Joint Congressional Committee on Railway Mail Pay, throughout its entire inquiry, gave the railroads, as well as the Postoffice Department, full and fair opportunity to be heard, and that the Senate Postoffice Committee accorded the railroads an equally impartial hearing.

Hearing Denied By Moon Committee. The judicial attitude of these two committees stands out in sharp contrast to that of the House Postoffice Committee, which, under the chairmanship of Representative Moon, refused to hear the railroads at all.

Chairman Moon's committee even tried to rush its measure through Congress before the joint Congressional Committee had time to report.

In the hearings before the Senate Postoffice Committee ample proof was given that passage of the Moon bill would force all of the railroads to carry the mails at a heavy loss, and that in the case of some of the smaller roads it would mean financial ruin.

Modern equipment, modern methods, modern merchandise may do much to make a store; but to make it successful, you must have the driving power of a whole-souled clique of employees, whose purpose is one with that of the management and in this store that one purpose is CLOTHING SERVICE SUPREMACY.

KUPPENTHEIMER CLOTHES have the hearty endorsement of every clothing-wise member of the Live Store. This endorsement is not the result of snap judgment, but a conclusion from continuous association with these clothes, a season after season study of them, a year after year review of the service and satisfaction which they invariably give to men and young men who come here year after year for them.

BULLDOG PROTECTS WOMAN FROM TRAMP

Glasgow, Ky., March 29.—"Puppy," a bulldog belonging to Mrs. Wood Ford, in this county, protected her from an angry tramp Thursday morning, and is now the hero of the hour.

A strange looking man appeared at the front door of the Ford residence and asked for something to eat. Mrs. Ford told the tramp to go around to the kitchen door and she would give him what she had. When she reached the dining room the man was helping himself. She became frightened and asked him to leave. He paid no attention to her orders and continued to help himself. She called "Puppy," and the dog grabbed the tramp by the trousers and set him on the outside. This angered the tramp and he attempted to come back in the house, when at a nod from Mrs. Ford, the dog attacked the stranger again and the tramp was glad to make his escape.

LATEST WAR BULLETINS

English Ship Sunk By Germans.
London, March 29.—The report of yesterday that the British steamer Falaba had been sunk by a German submarine was confirmed today. The Falaba was sent to the bottom yesterday afternoon off Milford Haven, an inlet on the coast of South Wales. The loss of life probably was heavy.

The Falaba left Liverpool on Saturday for the west coast of Africa, with 140 passengers and with a crew of 120 men. Her officers state that when the German submarine appeared it whistled thrice as a signal for the steamer to prepare her lifeboats, but that before this could be done a torpedo struck the ship near the engine room.

Austria Wants To Quit.

Paris, March 29.—Austria has made a definite offer to cede to Italy a part of the province of Trent at the close of the war, the Petit Parisien's Rome correspondent says he has been informed. He adds that the proposal was made on Thursday, and that the Italian government deferred its reply.

Straits Clear of Mines.

London, March 29.—A dispatch from Athens says: "Mine dragging in the Dardanelles continued Saturday and Sunday it was announced that the mine zone had been cleared as far as the city of Dardanelles. The weather is now clear."

Getting Ready Some More.

Rome, March 29.—All the Alpine troops of the first category, born in 1883, have been called to the colors by the Italian War Department for 15 days.

The official military journal also calls to the colors all artillery and engineer reserve officers for 40 days from April 16.

Von Klock Wounded.

General Von Klock, the German commander who led the famous German rush into France in the early days of the war, has been slightly wounded by shrapnel.

Russia's Great Power Is Scarcely Touched.

Amsterdam, March 29.—Prof. Vogt, a well known German authority on Russian affairs, warns Germany in the War waters that "it will take a long time to get great energy and patience and many victories to gain headway against this new Russia."

Martial Law In Italy Effective On April 1.

Rome, March 29.—Martial law will go into effect throughout Italy on April 1. While no formal proclamation may be issued, the military establishment will take over all telegraph and telephone lines and the railroads.

And They Came Out.

The first night the Canadians were on the firing line, they were taunted by the Germans, who kept calling out: "Come out, you Canadians. Come out and fight." The battalion has proved itself worthy of fighting side by side with the veteran heroes who held the trenches throughout the winter in Flanders.

NEW TRANS-ATLANTIC SERVICE.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 30.—The departure of the steamship Northwestern Miller from this port today marks the inauguration of a new fast freight service between Philadelphia and London, to be operated by the Philadelphia Trans-Atlantic Line. The Northwestern Miller is to be followed by the steamships Southwestern Miller and the Dominion Miller, which are her sister ships. All of the vessels will make the passage between Philadelphia and London in ten days. In the past all of the regular line boats between these two ports have consumed between 15 and 17 days in making the trip.

President Wilson began a two days' vacation which will last until today. He was entertained aboard the Argentine dreadnought at Annapolis Monday.

When angry, think twice before speaking. That will give you time to call him a more resounding name.

FRUITFULNESS AND THE CONSEQUENCES.

The decision meeting at the Christian church was well attended Monday night. The services will begin at 7:15 o'clock. The minister will take for his subject tonight, "Fruitfulness, or the barren fig tree." The meetings last about one hour and a quarter, so that those who are pressed for time to attend may find it easier to enjoy these services.
